Rules

1. Strict adherence to established deadlines is a must. The match should be played and reported to the Event chairman no later than the evening deadline for the respective round.
2. All participants are responsible for proactively scheduling the match. As a courtesy, the higher seeded (lower number) team should take ownership to ensure match is decided on the golf course.
3. If a match is unable to be played by the deadline, the team which feels more at fault should retire to protect the timeliness of the event.
4. Substitution of players is not permitted. If one team member is unable to play due to injury or other circumstances, the match may be contended with the available player against the other team.
5. If no volunteer steps forward to retire, the Event Chairman on the Monday following the deadline will decide the team to advance through a single coin flip.
6. Under extremely rare circumstances, if the participants would like an exception to the deadline to be considered, they must notify the Event Chairman prior to the deadline with a valid reason why there was not enough time to complete the match. In addition, the match must be scheduled within an immediate time frame. For example, "we are playing on Tuesday morning at 8:12." The Event Chairman will not consider the following weekend as reasonable or timely and will default to a coin flip to protect the event.
7. The Event Chairman shall have final say on both the decision to grant (or not) an extension and to determine the outcome of the Single coin flip.

Discussion

The Discussion is intended to provide further information as to the application and operation of the Rules. In reviewing this information, it should be remembered that the Rules were adopted because a previously consistent members' complaint had been difficulty in scheduling and completing matches in a timely manner.

1. We can all agree that difficult weather can impact the playing of matches. However, weather, by itself, is not justification for an extension of the applicable deadline, even though the match could not be conveniently scheduled until the end of the allowable time. If competitors schedule a match to be played near the end of the deadline, they assume the risk of bad weather, unless the Club determines that all match deadlines should be extended.
2. A competitor only being available to play on the weekends or being out of town do not, by themselves, justify an extension.

3. The amount of time requested for the extension, by itself, is not a relevant consideration under the Rules. If it were, short extensions would be automatic and the purposes of the Rules, negated.
4. A request for an extension should address all elements of the Rules, including Rule 3's admonition that "the Team who feels more at fault" should retire. While no one should be forced to retire, competitors need to recognize this fundamental obligation of their participation.
5. Rule 6 states that extensions are permitted "under extremely rare circumstances." We can all agree that the Rules require members to proactively and diligently schedule and complete their matches; extensions should not be expected or assumed.
6. Having extensions granted by subsequent potential opponents is not a process contemplated by the Match Play Rules. Such a process is not desirable as it will create situations in which matches seeking extensions will cajole or pressure subsequent potential opponents to accede to an extension. Those situations will be unfair to the subsequent competitors and will yield inconsistent results in affording extensions, depending upon the identities of the subsequent opponents.
